Invitational Lectureship

The following is mutually agreed upon.

Each learned Society will select and invite a scientist residing in the country of the other Society. The inviting Society will select the lecturer from a list proposed by the partner Society.

The visiting scientist shall deliver lectures at three different locations (Universities or Research Institutions) in the host country. Preferences of the invited speaker shall be considered but the locations will be chosen as a mean to build mutual acquaintanceship between the scientific communities of Italy and Spain.

The inviting society will organize the lecture tour. Travel (tourist class) and leaving expenses will be provided by the inviting Society.

The lectureship has been dedicated jointly to the Italian and Spanish Scientists "Giacomo Ciamician" and "Antonio González"

The name of the lectureship may be changed upon mutual agreement by the partner societies.

Under this agreement a lecturer should be invited at least every second year, by each country, beginning from 2005. The agreement can be revoked by either Society with written notice to be sent at least one year in advance and will be effective at the end of the succeeding year.
